FORTIETH CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.

On motion of Mr. Sherman the rules were modified so as to allow the Committee on Internal Revenue the privilege of the floor in the consideration of measures affecting the revenue.

A communication was laid before the Senate from Mr. Stanton, Secretary of War, in compliance with a resolution of April 9, 1867, transmitting a list of volunteer officers in the military service, with rank and present position, to the Committee on Military Affairs.

The bill for the exemption of cotton from taxation came up.

The House having non-concurred in the Senate amendment, Mr. Sherman, from the Committee on Finance, moved that the Senate substitute the following amendment:

Provided that raw cotton imported from foreign countries after July 1, 1868, shall be exempt from duty.

The motion was laid aside by consent for a time.

Mr. Chandler presented a petition from citizens of Texas, praying Congress not to ratify appointments of non-residents of the State.

Mr. Trumbull presented a memorial from Thomas A. Williams, Stephen R. Hays, and John A. Bingham, asking to be familiar with Indian affairs, setting forth various reasons why the present mode of dealing with the Indians is not desirable, and praying Congress to incorporate them into the United States, so as to be subject to the laws, and bring them into the contact of civilization.

Mr. Bingham—It is a fact that the gentleman deals with nothing else than rhetoric. [Laughter.]

It is a fact that treason battered down the government of South Carolina.

Mr. Bingham—Having thus battered down the government of South Carolina, you are now going to give it a new one.

Mr. Bingham—(nearly out of patience) Well, none of your rhetoric. Answer my question.

Mr. Bingham—Do answer it, sir, and I will answer it in the words of James Madison, the maker of your Constitution.

Mr. Bingham—(patience entirely exhausted) I will answer your question. The gentleman will not answer my question. He dare not.

Mr. Bingham—I dare, sir, if you will let me. [Laughter.]

Mr. Bingham—I will give the gentleman an opportunity to answer it now; I will not let him answer it later.

Mr. Bingham—One minute is rather short.

Mr. Bingham—(to the speaker) I am not getting rid of the rhetoric. [Laughter.]

Mr. Bingham—Shakespeare gave a man four minutes to grapple the earth. A man of the Cherokee nation lands and recommends that the Legislature memorialize the President to give an answer.

Mr. Bingham—Yes, but I do not wish to go to the Cherokee nation to get an answer. [Laughter.]

Mr. Bingham—The man who was called the father of the Constitution, James Madison, knew as well as both of us, and he declared, touching this very clause of the Constitution, that the majority of a State batters down its government by treason, it is the right and duty of the minority to rebuild it; that is my answer. [Applause in the galleries which was promptly checked by the Speaker.]
